European Congress of Toxicologic Pathology

23-26 SEPTEMBER 2025

MANCHESTER, UK | 2ND JOINT CONGRESS OF ESTP AND BSTP

The 2025 congress is organized by the European Society of Toxicologic Pathology (ESTP) and the British Society of Toxicologic Pathology (BSTP). The title of the Congress is “Carcinogenicity in the 21st Century; challenges of new methodologies, strategies, and their impact on pathologists.” The program will include new methodologies and alternatives for the assessment of carcinogenicity testing of agrochemical and pharmaceuticals, predicting carcinogenetic potential of compounds at early stages, carcinogenicity assessment of new modality drugs, risk assessment and human relevance of neoplastic and non-neoplastic findings in carcinogenicity studies.

Why partner with ESTP/BSTP Congress as a key sponsor or exhibitor?

The European Society of Toxicologic Pathology (ESTP) was established in October 2002 with the aim of developing a strong European foundation for toxicological pathology. It is continuing to be a fast-growing society with now over 300 members. The British Society of Toxicologic Pathology (BSTP) was established in 1975 to foster training and advance education in toxicological pathology and to advance pathology for the public benefit. The joint ESTP/BSTP Congress is expecting approximately 250 participants from all over the world to join for the opportunity to learn and discuss scientific and regulatory topics, as well as new developments within our field of drug development, safety assessment and registration of drugs, agrochemical and biocides amongst others, whilst providing a relaxing environment for professional networking. In general, participants are from Research Organizations, Pharmaceutical, (Agro)Chemical companies, University or Regulatory authorities. The societies ESTP and BSTP are especially keen to promote state of the art education to our members as well as attracting junior colleagues to start a career in the field of applied toxicological pathology. We are a registered non-profit organization and with your financial help as a sponsor, we are able to organize meetings offering a scientific program of the highest scientific standard. To attract young people interested in the field of Toxicologic Pathology from the University, we have reduced fees for students.
